tative Money complimenting the Admiral.

In the regular course of events he would be retired in April next, but should Congress give him a resolution of thanks, his period of active service would be extended ten years further. This would be a most signal honor at the present time, as there are few in the naval service who enjoy it. It would also carry the pay of an officer on the active list, which is considerably above the pay of the retired rank.

In another respects the vote of thanks would give Admiral Benham unusual privileges. Bule 54, in the House, provides that among the few to be accorded the privilege of admirals not to the floor are "such persons as have, by name, received the thanks of Congress."
